SHOPPING & DINING IN LOWER MANHATTAN

From the Statue of Liberty to the observation deck at One World Trade Center, this neighborhood is marked by breathtaking views and a rich history. These are the cobblestone streets where Alexander Hamilton and George Washington shaped the American experiment, where the New York Stock Exchange was founded and where countless immigrants first caught a glimpse of their new world. Today, these streets are also home to hundreds of pubs, eateries, and shops, like those lining the historic Stone Street alleyway, Brookfield Place, lower Broadway, and Westfield World Trade Center.

Maybe it shouldn’t come as a surprise that Lower Manhattan is, once again, a destination for great restaurants and shopping. After all, Fraunces Tavern was a key watering hole and meeting place during the Revolutionary War. And America’s first fine dining restaurant, Delmonico’s, is celebrating its 180th anniversary this year. Good food and grog have been here since the olden days.

Today, ours is a must-have address for big-name chefs and internationally recognizable brands. This year alone, Lower Manhattan welcomed the acclaimed Nobu, the much beloved David Chang fried chicken mecca Fuku, Blue Ribbon Federal Grill, City Acres food market, and many others. These restaurants join the ranks of familiar favorites and old standbys. With all this, it’s no surprise that Bloomberg News named us “the surprise, hot restaurant scene.”

And if you’re thirsty, you’re in luck. From beer halls to Seaport speakeasies, the neighborhood’s bar scene had another banner year. One of the neighborhood’s newest additions, BlackTail, was named the “Best New Cocktail Bar in America” at Tales of the Cocktail’s 11th Annual Spirited Awards.

When it comes to fashion and beauty, we are now poised to become one of the pre-eminent shopping destinations in the region. A year after the Oculus and Westfield World Trade Center opened, Saks Men (following on the heels of Saks Women), Marshalls, Dior Cosmetics, and Allen Edmonds joined T.J. Maxx, Century 21, and the shops at Brookfield Place.

What will next year bring? Looking ahead, restaurateurs Jean-Georges Vongerichten, Danny Meyer, and the duo of Will Guidara and Daniel Humm plan to open new restaurants in Lower Manhattan. And when Alamo Drafthouse opens its doors to moviegoers at 28 Liberty, it will join the Seaport’s iPic Theater in making the neighborhood a destination for those who want to mix great food and drink with catching a flick.

Just like you can’t tell the players in a baseball game without a scorecard, sometimes it can be hard to keep track of all the new options in the neighborhood. With that in mind, we present you with the Downtown Alliance’s 2018 Lower Manhattan Shop Dine Guide – your best source for shops, eateries, bars, museums, community resources, attractions and more. If we missed your favorite local spot, please let us know. And for the most up-to-date information, please make sure to check our website, downtownny.com.

Cheers!

Lower Manhattan is now one of the tri-state region’s major shopping destinations. An influx of retailers from high-end stores and boutiques to popular chains complement existing institutions such as Century 21 and answer a surging swell of demand among residents, workers and visitors. It’s hard to keep up with the area’s surging retail scene, but don’t worry – this section of the guide will help you navigate everything the neighborhood has to offer.

What follows is a list of the district’s myriad shopping opportunities. Throughout the year, please check our website for new openings and additional information about Lower Manhattan at downtownny.com.

All information is subject to change. We apologize for any errors or omissions. For inclusion in our next edition, email us at contactus@downtownny.com or call (212) 566-6700.

The Downtown Alliance vigorously supports retail development and works to nurture foot traffic throughout the district. In addition to distributing the Shop Dine Guide to promote area stores, restaurants, bars, hotels and cafes, we remind New Yorkers that during the holiday season, “Down is What’s Up!” Through a combination of social media and advertising, we spread the word that spending and shopping in Lower Manhattan is a festive experience. We distribute a multilingual guide and also offer a “Downtown Deals” program, a free service that supports area retail and restaurants.

Our website serves as a digital showcase for Lower Manhattan businesses, events and news, and our mobile apps help residents, workers and visitors alike figure out what to do and where to go in our district. All of these efforts are buttressed by our economic development team’s work to attract the newest and most dynamic retailers to the district, creating a vibrant shopping landscape.
